

It's been a while since I've written an update. The two basic factors are as follows. First of all, we've been moving. Secondly, in late May, my son Micah pulled my laptop off a shelf, and I lost all my files including my update list. I had the option of paying over $2000 and letting a company in the US go in and get my files for me, or letting a computer guy here work at getting my files one by one as he is able (the hard drive was damaged pretty extensively). We opted for the cheaper route, of course. As you can guess, I'm now making decisions about how to best back up all my files so that, Lord willing, this doesn't happen again.

We've moved into our new house and we really like it. The Lord provided for us to buy a first-floor apartment. It's quite large, and has all that we really wanted in a house. We have a guest bedroom (which we have already used and we'll be using all the time), a small back yard for the children, and an office for me to work in. We've developed a good relationship with the constructor and his wife, and I'm planning to approach him about a doing a Bible study.

Here's our new address (All mail can be sent to this address):

I am continuing to work with music in our church. In May, I finished preaching a four night series on music. Our relationship with the church continues to grow and we are thankful for a good pastor and a great group of believers. They have embraced us, and we thank God for that.

Cheryl continues to progress in Spanish. Her access to formal study is somewhat limited considering our recent move and the fact that we have three young children. But with Peruvians in our home most days, she is progressing well. The children are learning Spanish, and even though it's a little harder to judge their progress, I have no doubts they will learn well.

On Monday, we fly to the States for a three-week trip. Cheryl's brother, Greg, is getting married July 20th. We are looking forward to time with Cheryl's family during this trip. We get back August 6th, and on August 8th, we begin a week-long evangelistic campaign with the Baptist church in Tahuantisuyo, Lima. My friend and fellow evangelist, Segundo Rodriguez, will be participating with us in the campaign. Please pray that God would give us great fruit from our time with that church.

In Christ,
Tim Chapman
